Readers are encouraged to participate in EVPL's Fall Reading Challenge

Evansville, IN, September 22, 2020 – The Evansville Vanderburgh Public Library invites all readers to participate in the Fall Reading Challenge: Fall into Reading, kicking off on Saturday, October 3.

The challenge will last until Saturday, November 14, and all ages are welcome to participate. Those without an EVPL card are also able to participate.

"After our successful Summer Reading Celebration, we wanted to make sure the community had a fun reason to read this fall," said EVPL CEO-Director Scott Kinney. "We hope the Fall Reading Challenge will give readers an opportunity to explore new worlds, escape reality, and discover new subjects."

Readers will log hours read by utilizing EVPL's Beanstack or by calling 812.428.8232 to record hours read.

Participants will be grouped by age: Children (0-12), Teens (13-17), and Adults (18+).

Three grand prize winners from each age group will be randomly drawn at the conclusion of the Fall into Reading challenge. Readers must have read for one hour, or five books for those in the children's group, to earn a badge and be entered into the grand prize drawing. The more badges earned, the more chances the reader has to win. The challenge will conclude for readers after 10 hours read or 10 badges earned.
